2007

This website has been launched. From its initial launch year until 2022, the site has been hosted on 4 different servers. We even have been hacked on one server in 2012. Very fortunate that I keep all the data in the non-virtual world. All the data from visitors combined from all servers and as of 2012, combined 480 M views, not 'unique visitors', as many of the same users returned more than once. Other media metrics such as IMDb tend to corroborate this bit over there The combined views of all the stats is far higher. We started a process to have the stats audited in New York, but Covid came and I've chosen to remain in England during that time so the audit has stalled. It is not to gloat about it, but in order to achieve this, it has been an extremely hard and difficult period. Infact, all through the decades. It really wasn't an easy process. We never really attached too much importance to the data until we have been confronted with the lack of 'traditional media' on the web -still traditional and often hard to be respected- coverage (what used to be called: media or press coverage). The time it needed to be wasted in chasing even a tiny mention, truly outweighs the benefit. I'm extremely happy to keep my face in the crowd and to be ignored in the mainstream consciousness: it's nanotechnology at its most refined!

2007-2008

70% of the music catalogue (the songs) has been divided and edited as a ringtone/realtone/mastertone, videotone, doorbell and car alarm. Released in the U.S. through Verizon, T-Mobile, Orange and Vodafone in Europe and also released in Japan and South Korea.

As the films produced between 1997-2006 suffered from a poor distribution and some were still awaiting a general release, just over 800 pics -numbered 1-800 have been extracted (exported) from the films and used as a backdrop for the ringtones. The films were in fact distributed, albeit in images but images following the chapters in the films with music, noise and often bits of dialogues in the actual ringtones. We only used the content of 4 films, as the other films have been released later.

As for an understanding of the series of images used, we provided a summary of the corresponding scene from the films and in an interactive presentation on this website. Available for those interested, but only a few millions clicked on the interactive slideshow that we created.

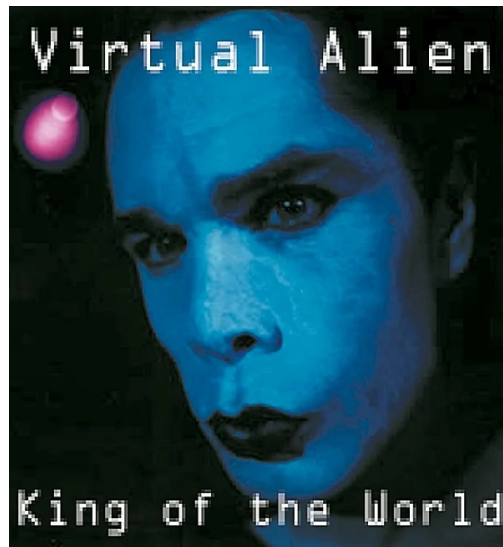

The distribution of the ringtones were in parts -large part- distributed by a tech division of Sony. A combined 6 M ringtones have been sold and for the first time in history, a label that I was associated with was truly happy with my work. It paid for 4 people to live for 4 years. Basically. Most of my albums have been subsequently released as well as some of my films.

Even with the happiness indulged with the sale of the ringtones, it didn't prevent the distributor from firing me by email, one bright morning in 2011. For them, I just couldn't produce fast enough. They have missed out on the 18 new feature films and documentaries and 10 albums produced during the 2010 years.

Still available today but on Apple music only under Virtual Alien with no direct links: we have to log in to Apple.

Release of the album: Old Nick by Virtual Alien on Vinyl, CD and cassette.

Release of the album: Twist, Fate and Heaven released under the name of OldNick in one word (a disaster: Nick left his producers and label). Available on Vinyl, CD and cassette. All tracks feature on the War of Love album. The initial cover has a black and white square on it over a white background displaying the artist's face. It has been totally rejected by the artist and after the first pressing of the vinyl, the cover had been changed to white only. The designer managed to make a mistake on one song: it was supposed to be Drizzle and instead was written Treasure as the last song . 80 000 copies sold (with the white cover). In the early years, with the artist's rejection of some of the covers and productions, he had quickly been labelled "difficult, unmanageable and a spoilt teen". Indeed, the artist was not even a teen, albeit a very young one. His choices have proved to be accurate and long lasting.

A mini-album is released: The End with four songs: For the Very First Time, On an Axe, White Mecca, The End. The record label had emphasised the name Old Nick 3 times: Old Nick, Old Nick, Old Nick.

1984

Second single released under the name of: Old Nick: The Sophisticated Opera and The Funeral Party.

1983.

First single released for a very young teen under the name of: The Old Nick with his logo: a small black triangle carried out over the decades.

Two tracks: Glorious and The Final Song. (The music consists of 3 different metronomes shuffled together).
